Processed Childhood

Run to gymnastics, ballet, soccer and swimming fill in the gap with a foreign language (maybe religion) Let's see, it's already the end of the week

Time is fading
(not a minute to lose)

Did we get the tutor
to make our kids perfect?
Clock keeps ticking
as we dream of sleep..

The pedagogic conveyor belt keeps moving
Not asking if we stopped the clock to give back childhood to our future adults

FISHBOWL

Socialite, elitist
with the big house Titles dropped
like confetti
Where culture
has value
only when free, at others' expense

Blinded by surroundings sycophants and all

MEASURED

Who are we to pass
judgment Stewards of subjective reason
in a sea of ripples

How quickly we forget the thread of the Fates applies to all regardless of faith

BALLFIELD

Left field, right field
Where do you fit?

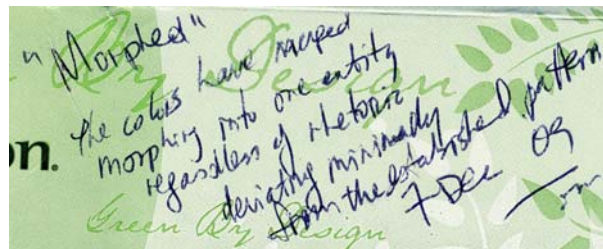

The ball may fall
at your feet

But shifting plates
uproot your dogma

MORPHED

The colors have merged morphing into one entity deviating minimally
from the established pattern
